N every community many persons who have funds to invest or property to manage, sell and reinvest need the advice and assistance of others. To invest wisely and profitably requires business experience and familiarity with the values of property and with the various channels of investment.

Some have estates to be freed from incumbrances or to be distributed by assignments or otherwise among creditors. Some have estates to be finally administered upon and distributed among heirs or special beneficiaries, or to be held in trust for certain specified purposes. Others have incomes to be collected and safely kept at interest until needed. Others desire to provide from their present means or income for the future requirements of their relatives and dependents. For all such things a trust company is required.

Total sales of stocks amounted to only 73,370 shares. The week closed on the Stock Exchange with a heavy tone to the speculation, solely as a result of the continuance and threatening character of the railway strike. It was not until Saturday that Wall street took serious alarm at the condition of affairs in the Western railway world. The London market for American securities reflected the foreign estimate of the strike by the depression which characterized the trading in rallway securities, and there was foreign selling of the international stocks on the New York exchange. It has come to this, that the influence of the strike is now all-absorbing on the stock market; but immediate future of speculative values depends almost entirely on the course of the railroad workers, and it is not alone share values that are affected. The sterling exchange market developed a hardening tendency by reason of the growth of a belief that if the situation do not improve American securities will be returned by foreign holders in such amounts as to cause a heavy demand for sterling bills which would, consequently, command higher rates. The entire financial

The course of values Saturday for the reasons above indicated, and for these alone, was downward. Prices, with scarcely an exception, declined steadily from the opening to the close of business. The selling was largely of long stock, which the holders did not care to carry over Sunday. There were some sales for the short account, but in small amounts, the bears realizing that should there be a settlement of the labor difficulties the reassuring effect would result in a sharp advance in the market. Pullman was the heaviest sufferer of the entire list, declining 2 per cent. C., C., C. & St. Louis broke 34, recovered 1%, making a net loss of 1% Lead preferred and Laclede Gas preferred each fell off 11/2; Burlington & Quincy and United States Cordage preferred, Northwest, Lake Erie & Western, Baltimore & Ohio, Delaware & Hudson and Sugar, each-1 per cent. The only stock which recorded an advance on the day's transactions was Wheeling & Lake Erie preferred, which is 1/4 above the closing price of Friday. The tone of speculation in the final trading was decidedly heavy, and the market closed with a downward

LOCAL GRAIN AND PRODUCE. Trade Feels the Strike-Prices in

Many Articles Tending Higher. The effects of the strike are becoming quite evident, not only cutting off receipts, but shipments as well. On Commission row and in the strictly produce markets the effects of the difficulty in moving freights is the most apparent. The strike was not felt here until after the fourth of July; on previous days retail merchants had stocked up quite freely with vegetables and fruits, and they had some of the stock to hold over. Now that is gone they come on to the market and find they pay more for such articles. Wholesale dealers in groceries feel it, but dry-goods houses and millinery establishments expect dull times in July, and are getting their full measure of it. Provisions are firm and selling well for home consumption or any point where shipments can be made. Wool, hide and leather markets are dull. The local grain market is dull and uninteresting. Declers and shippers are doing practically nothing, so light are receipts and so difficult is it to ship grain eastward after purchased. Track bids yesterday

LETTER FROM LEO XIII.

Encyclical Addressed to the People of the United States.

BALTIMORE, Md., July 7.-The last encyclical of Pope Leo XIII has been received at the Archbishopal residence, and, by the courtesy of Cardinal Gibbons, a careful and exact English translation of the Latin text has been prepared especially for the press. The encyclical is addresed to the people of the United States. Paragraphs from the letter are as follows: "It is with the same burning charity that we now turn towards those people who, in a more recent age, under the influence of exceptional convulsions, temporal and material, left the bosom of the Roman Church. Forgetful of past vicissitudes, let them raise their spirit above human things, and, thirsting only for truth and salvation, consider the church founded by Jesus Christ. If they will then compare their own churches with this church and see to what a pass religion has come with them they will admit readily that, having forgotten the primitive traditions in several important points, the ebb and flow of variety has made them slip into new things. And they will not deny that of the truths which the authors of this new state of things had taken with them they seceded, hardly any certain and authoritative formula remains '

In regard to the church's relation to the state the encyclical says: "This liberty, however, need not arouse rivalries and antagonisms, for the church aspires to no power and obeys no ambition. What it desires solely is to preserve among men the exercise of virtues, and by this means ascondescension and material processes. More than this, having regard to the requirements of all societies it sometimes waives the exercise of its own rights, as has been shown abundantly by its conventions with different states. Nothing is further from its thoughts than to trespass upon the rights of civil authority, which, in return, should respect the rights of the church and beware of usurping any part of them. And if, now, we can consider what is happening in our time, what tendency do we see by many of the churches? Suspected, disdained, hated, accused, and, what is worse, no efforts are spared to bring it under the yoke of the civil authority. Its property is confiscated and its liberties narrowed, its education of the aspirants to the priesthood is hampered, exceptional laws are made against the clergy, religious societies are dissolved or forbidden, precious though they be to the church. In short, we witness a revival of all the regalist methods and "This is a violation of the rights of the church. It is preparing lamentable catastrophes for society, for it is the open contradiction of the plans of God. The state has its own rights and duties. The church has hers. Between them there should be the bonds of strictest concord. So would surely be suppressed the unrest visible in the relations of church and state-an unrest for many reasons perilous and grievous to all good people. "Another grave peril to unity is the Masonic sect, a formidable power, which has Catholic nations. Insolently proud of strength, resources and successes, she spares no pains in these, our troubled times, to affirm and extend her dominion every-"May God, so rich in mercy; God, who holds in his power the times and the propitious hours of His infinite goodness, grant our prayers and hasten the promise of Jesus Christ, when there shall be one fold

LOOTED BY A MOB.

Store at Spring Valley Broken Into and Its Contents Carried Away.

SPRING VALLEY, Ill., July 7 .- A mob of Ithunians-men, women and childrenstore last night and commenced to hurl stones through the windows. This was soon followed by the breaking in of the doors. The rioters took what food they could carry. The store contained a stock valued at $4,000, and there was not a dollars' worth in it at midnight. The police made no resistance, as the people were in dire need of food, and the men would not have hesitated to murder any who attempted resistance. The Ithunians have taken an active part in the American Railway Union strike by running the night road walkers off the Rock Island, and have threatened to tear up the tracks should another train try to pass the town.

Joseph Vance, pastor of the Second Presbyterian Church at Chester, Pa., sends to the Journal a copy of a family relic that bears on the history of the battle of Tippecanoe. John D. Hay, the writer of the letter, was from 1800 till his death, in 1840, a merchant in Vincennes. The liam Hay, of Dauphin county, Pennsylvania, and although it was brief the postage on it amounted to 25 cents. The writer was an intelligent and accurate man. The letter is as follows:

"Dear Father-On the 15th of October I was ordered to join a troop of cavalry to which I belonged. It was then with the army on its march against the hostile Indians up the Wabash. I set out in three days and overtook the army on the 21st at Fort Harrison, eighty miles north of this place. Eight days after my arrival the army took up the line of march, and on the sixth day of this month we got in sight of the Prophet's town. The Indians seeing our approach sent out a flag of truce and begged the Governor, who was our commander-in-chief, to retire to a creek one half mile back and they would meet him in council the next day. He did so, and we encamped for the night on the ground which they had pointed out. Our troops consisted of one regiment of United States troops, about 450 strong; three troops of horse, amounting to 120 men; two companies of mounted riflemen, and about 300 militia on foot. The enemy were said to be seven hundred warriors. The night was dark and rainy, 4:30 in the morning of the 7th the Indians attacked our sentinels; then, raising the war whoop, made a violent onset to force our lines. Our men, one and all, behaved with great spirit. The battle killed and 125 wounded. We lost a great many horses. During the action the Indians drove off forty-six head of beef cat-tle, which were all we had. At day'ight the Indians retreated and left us to bury our dead and take care of our wounded. which took up a whole day. We had the satisfaction of finding in and around our camp fifty-four dead Indians, and saw the trails of blood where a great number had been carried off during the action. On the 8th we reconsitered the town and found that they had in their flight left an immense quantity of corn, beans, kettles, guns, and a variety of other things, all of which we destroyed, except what was necessary for the army. We then burned the town, which consisted of about two hundred houses. On the 9th we took up the line of march for home, and arrived here on the 17th. A great many of my intimate acquaintances were killed."

Echoes from the Fourth. Tom, the proud father of a young America who has not yet been initiated into the mysterious splendor of our national load of fireworks. "All for the boy," he | hation is Buffalo. said. When the darkness of the night came Tom got ready, and the display began. The first rocket shot through the air over the treetops in great shape. The next. by some unaccountable twist, fol-lowed the pavement on North street, three feet from the ground, and brought a team of horses on their hind legs, paying the air, over two squares away, causing the occupants of the carriage to cry out with great fear. As that was not a success another one was fired. This time it was a direct shot for the house across the street. It burst throught the shutter, tearing the wire screen into shreds and firing the lace curtains in a twinkle. Tom by this time saw the danger. He rushed across the street, jerked open the shutter, rushed madly through the wire screen. pulled the burning curtains to the floor and soon stamped the fire out. His wife at the same time threw the boy on the grass and rushed for the fire-alarm box. The department got there in time to see Tom brushing the cinders from his hair and eyes. By this time a neighbor came along and volunteered to send the rockets up without any trouble. His first effort was to shoot a rocket so straight in the air that when the stick came down it buried itself in the ground only three feet from wher they were standing. This made Tom's hair stand on end, and with great effort he called a regro boy who was taking in the fun, and said: "Get a wheelbarrow, quick, and take these hair-splitting, air-rending rockets down to the canal and dump them in where they can do no more harm." This suited the boy, and of course he followed

BRITANNIA WON AGAIN

VIGILANT BEATEN IN HER SECOND RACE IN SCOTLAND.

She Allowed the Prince of Wales's Yacht Three Minutes and Lost

HUNTER'S QUAY, Firth of Clyde, July 7 .- Vigilant, America's crack yacht, was beaten again to-day by Britannia, the Prince of Wales's cutter, in the race for the Queen's cup.

by Nearly Two Minutes.

The course to-day was that of the Royal Clyde Yacht Club, the one sailed over at the Mudhook contest on Thursday, namely, from markboat No. 1, off the clubhouse here, to and around a markboat off Skelmorlie, on the opposite shore; from there to and around a markboat off Ascog, Isle of Bute, on this shore; thence across the Clyde to and around the markboat off Kilcreggan, and thence home, twice around, a total distance of fifty miles. In to-day's race, according to the official rating, the Vigilant having been measured yesterday, the American yacht at 175 tons to the Britannia's 152 tons, allows the Prince of Wales's cutter three minutes and the Marjorie eighteen minutes.

The interest, of course, centered in the

sented a fine spectacle. Holy loch was crowded by about 150 sailing yachts and twenty steam yachts moored in an unex-Common to medium...... 2.50@3.00 ampled manner in order that their owners and their guests might get a good view of the exciting contest. During the early morning a light southerly breeze was blowing, and this was expected to benefit the Britannia. The breeze increased as the time approached, and, when the start was made, was blowing freshly down the channel. The smart and powerful-looking Vigilant lay in Gourock bay until 9:15 a. m., when she left her moorings and began cruising about the firth until the time for the start drew near. The atmosphere of the Clyde to-day was much clearer than on Thursday last, and a fine view of the contest could be obtained along the various shores. The Vigilant had up a jackyard topsail, expecting the wind would fail, or at least, not increase in strength. But the Marjorie made preparations for a blow and ran up a jib-headed topsail. The maneuvering for the start was a pretty sight. The Vigilant was luffing along in front of a line, while the Marjorie and Britannia cruised about in the mouth of the loch When they started to starboard in order to come down upon the line the Britannia was pushing into the weather of the Marjorle and was a bowsprit ahead as the gun was fired.

The Britannia went over the line almost immediately after gun fire, closely followed by the Majorie. The Vigilant made a bad start, being three-quarters of a minute behind the Britannia. This was accounted for by the fact that the American yacht had less way on when she came about. The time of crossing the line was Britannia, 10:30:17; Vigilant, 10:31:20. Amid rousing cheers and much steam whistling the three yachts bore away short on the starboard tack, and it was soon seen that the Vigilant was closing in on the leader and lying high up in the wind. The Britanhad a short hitch about hurdred yards out, and had to stand upon the weather of the Vigilant as she drew on and still had the weather gauge, the American yacht being two lengths behind. Captain Carter, of the Britannia, was to-day assisted by Captain

O'Neal, and the Prince of Wales's cutter had on board sixteen picked men from the Invernia, making a total of forty-six men to handle the yacht. The Vigilant carried a crew of forty-nine men. Both the Vigilant and the Britannia held on to the starboard tack to the Cloch shore without making a tack, the Britannia falling away to leeward. When the racers cleared the Cloch lightlouse they met slightly more wind, and the Britannia was not only pointing as high as the Vigilant, but she was drawing ahead. When the yachts ran into more open waters the breeze was breaking the sea into white caps, and both the Britannia and Vigilant were heeling over. The Vigilant, to everybody's surprise ashore, ap peared to be falling behind. Experts said that she forereached very fast and that the centerboard gripped her to windward in a very effective manner. On staying to fetch the Skelmories mark the Britannia slightly improved her lead. The time then was as follows: Britannia, 11:40:15: Vigilant. Britannia, 11:40:15; Vigilant, 11:40:55 The beat down was a marvelous exhibition of seamanship upon the part of the captains of both the American and English yachts. Both yachts came on the run toward Cloch with spinnakers to starboard and jib topsails and balloon foresails pulling splendidly, coming past the Weymss side in a true but softening wind. The Marjorie was following, 17 minutes astern. The time at Weymss bay was: Britannia, 12:34:16; Vigilant, 12:25:01. The Vigilant be gan closing upon the Britannia's stern on nearing the Cloch lighthouse, but after passing the lighthouse the Britannia again widened the gap between them. The cor-rected time of the first round was as follows: Britannia, 1 h. 35 m. 38 s.; Vigilant.

The Brittania passed Ascog mark, on the second round ahead of the Vigilant. The time was as follows: Britannia, 3 h. 2 m. 15 s.; Vigilant, 3 h. 3 m. 20 s. The Vigilant gained a few seconds in the reach from Skelmorie to Ascog. At the Cloch lighthouse the Vigilant had gained on the Britannia and was only a little over half minute astern. This was, however, only about three miles from the finish. The Britannia maintained her lead to the end. The time of the two yachts was as follows at the finishing line: Vigilant, 4 h. 16 m. 37 s.; Britannia, 4 h. 17 m. 42 s. The Britannia, with her time allowance of utes, won by 1 minute and 55 seconds.
